The "M Word"

"Suppose one of you wants to build a tower. Won't you first sit down and estimate the cost to see if you have enough money to complete it?" Luke 14:18

Recently I mentioned cutting our household cable TV service to save money in a sermon. I was surprised by the number of folks who came forward to talk about why they did the same thing or mention other household money saving tips. It's refreshing to be open with people about something many of us have grappled with... money and finance.

In some instances, talking about money can be really helpful. For example, if I'll be paying a higher price for rent than you are, or I paid less than you are about to for a car, perhaps talking about can help us both pay what's fair.

Why the taboo? It all goes back to the colonial era. Back in merry old England, the wealth of others was estimated based on the amount of land they owned. A person's wealth (and the status, power, and prestige it implied), was self-evident. This meant that people who had money didn't need to talk about it. Therefore, those who talked about money were (obviously) the ones who didn't have it. And thus, the discussion of money became associated with those in a "lower class" and taboo.

To oversimplify hundreds of years of social development, to be "classy" (polite, genteel, respectable) meant not talking about money—and so our current social norm was established. How prevalent is this cultural taboo against talking about money?

- According to Lizzie Post (of the Emily Post etiquette dynasty), the ranking of topics from easiest to most difficult to talk about is: weather, entertainment, food, hobbies, sports, politics, religion, and relationships/sex. And then money.
- Studies have determined that close to 3/4 of Americans think talking about money is rude.

- A study in London revealed that people were seven times more likely to talk with a stranger about sex, affairs, and their medical consequences than to discuss their salaries.

The upshot for the church? We don't really want to talk about money. I don't mean the polite and commonplace sermon about how it's "harder for the rich to get to heaven than for a camel to pass through the eye of the needle". I mean the real talk about where our treasure lives and what holds us back.

Practically speaking, this traps us in ignorance, stress, and scarcity... and here's why that's a bad thing...

- Financial illiteracy leads to uninformed consent and unwelcome surprises when the bills come due.
- As a country, we continue to amass the greatest amount of personal debt in the history of the world
- College grads might amass loads of student loan debt without calculating whether a chosen profession provides an adequate salary to pay it off
- Financial distress is a factor directly correlated with domestic violence
- Women and minorities continue to experience pay inequity out of ignorance of what others are paid, making it impossible to know if they're paid the same

Money itself is neither evil nor good. But our perspectives toward it can be. As church, we have a responsibility to disrupt the "don't ask, don't tell" culture of silence around money, so that we might cast a sacred vision and usher in shalom for our neighbor.

In peace, Pastor Jenn

Help Us Paint a Labyrinth!

When: Saturday, October 20, 9 am – 12:30 pm in Wilton Hall

Who: Anyone able to spend some time on their knees (and paint carefully within the lines)

This spring, Pastor Jenn, Julia Gutierrez and Betsy Gilberti applied for a church vitality grant from the Fairfield East Association and were given $700 to implement a labyrinth here at MCC. After much investigation, we've determined that the best kind for MCC would be a portable canvas one.

Thought to be a representation of the spiritual quest of the pilgrim traveling to the holy land, labyrinths began appearing in Europe in the 12th century. The one set into the stones in the nave of the Chartres Cathedral is a little over 42 feet in diameter. Today, replicas of that design (seen here) are used by many communities to embody and enhance an individual's Christian spirituality.

We anticipate that church members and friends will use the labyrinth during Advent and Lent as a seasonal devotion and prayerful addition to traditional forms of worship. We also plan to host quarterly "Open Labyrinth"

Walk Nights", inviting guests and members of the community to experience a spiritually enriching time of body movement and prayer.

Creating our own portable canvas labyrinth involves drawing the pattern, then painting onto canvas. It also involves some needlework, as Velcro strips will need to be stitched into four separate canvas pieces. Our first build day will be October 20th in Wilton Hall. Lunch will be served. Come and help us make this vision a reality. If you have a specific skill to share (or any questions) please speak with Pastor Jenn.

Call/text Clark (203-895-5604) or Rev. Jenn (203-895-5607) Gingras with any questions. This month, we meet in the back room. Hope to see you there! October Theme: The Secret to Happiness is...

Prayer Partners WANTED!! I have 8 volunteers who will be praying for a secret someone in the near future. All you have to do is sign up by providing some information in Wilton Hall. In early October you will receive a letter from me with the name of someone who you will keep in your thoughts. This does not require a lot of time or effort. Give them a moment of your day to wish them a great day. Seek them out during coffee hour or at the passing of the peace. If there's a special day they are celebrating, you could send them an anonymous card or note using the church's address as the return. This all culminates in May when we meet for a potluck luncheon where we do a big reveal and finally find out who was praying for whom. It's a piece of cake. Here's a testimonial from a previous volunteer:

"I felt praying for my prayer partner was something that made me concentrate on someone else besides myself. I was glad when I got to find out who she was."

Prayer is one of the most important things a Christian can do. It is a time they are communicating with God and it should be taken very seriously. It doesn't have to be something that is complicated and difficult. It's something anyone can do anywhere at any time. It's impossible to know someone if you don't spend time with them. Prayer is an opportunity to spend time with God. To really understand the heart of God, you need to pray.

If you have any questions, please contact Susie Cuseo at thecuseos@yahoo.com or 203-268-0280. Thank you to those who've already signed up.
